Agency Names Aide For Wasatch Park

By L. Don Lefevre
Tribune Staff Writer

The appointment of H. Clay Cummings, longtime Wasatch County rancher, churchman and civic official, as project coordinator for the Wasatch Mountain State Park was announced Wednesday by the Utah State Park and Recreation Commission.

MR. CUMMINGS, CURRENTLY serving as president of the New Zealand Mission, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, is expected to return to Utah and assume his duties by April 1, said Commission Chairman Harold P. Fabian.

Mr. Fabian said the commission is grateful to Mr. Cummings for accepting the position and to the First Presidency of the LDS Church for making the appointment possible.

SPEAKING FOR the First Presidency, Henry D. Moyle, first counselor to President David O. McKay, said "We feel that the selection of Mr. Cummings as project coordinator will be an important contributing factor to the progress of the park."

"Since he has served the church in New Zealand some two years now," President Moyle added, "and, since he is needed here, we have decided to release him from his duties as mission president as soon as an effective transition can be made."

MR. CUMMINGS went to New Zealand originally as director of the temple bureau of information at Hamilton and later was called to head the mission, which is headquartered in Auckland.

He has been engaged in the livestock business most of his life and has served four terms each as mayor of Heber and as a Wasatch County commissioner.

HE ALSO SERVED as president of the Wasatch LDS Stake for more than 20 years.

Prior to his call to New Zealand, he worked with the Heber Valley Citizens' Committee, which assisted the park commission in obtaining property for the park.

H. Clay Cummings . . . Will be key figure in park future.

MR. FABIAN said the commission selected Mr. Cummings for the position because he "has resided in the area of the park most of his life, he is familiar with the land involved and has proven to be a key figure in the park's establishment."

He will work with park director Aldin O. Hayward in carrying out the plans of the master development program submitted last autumn, Mr. Fabian said.

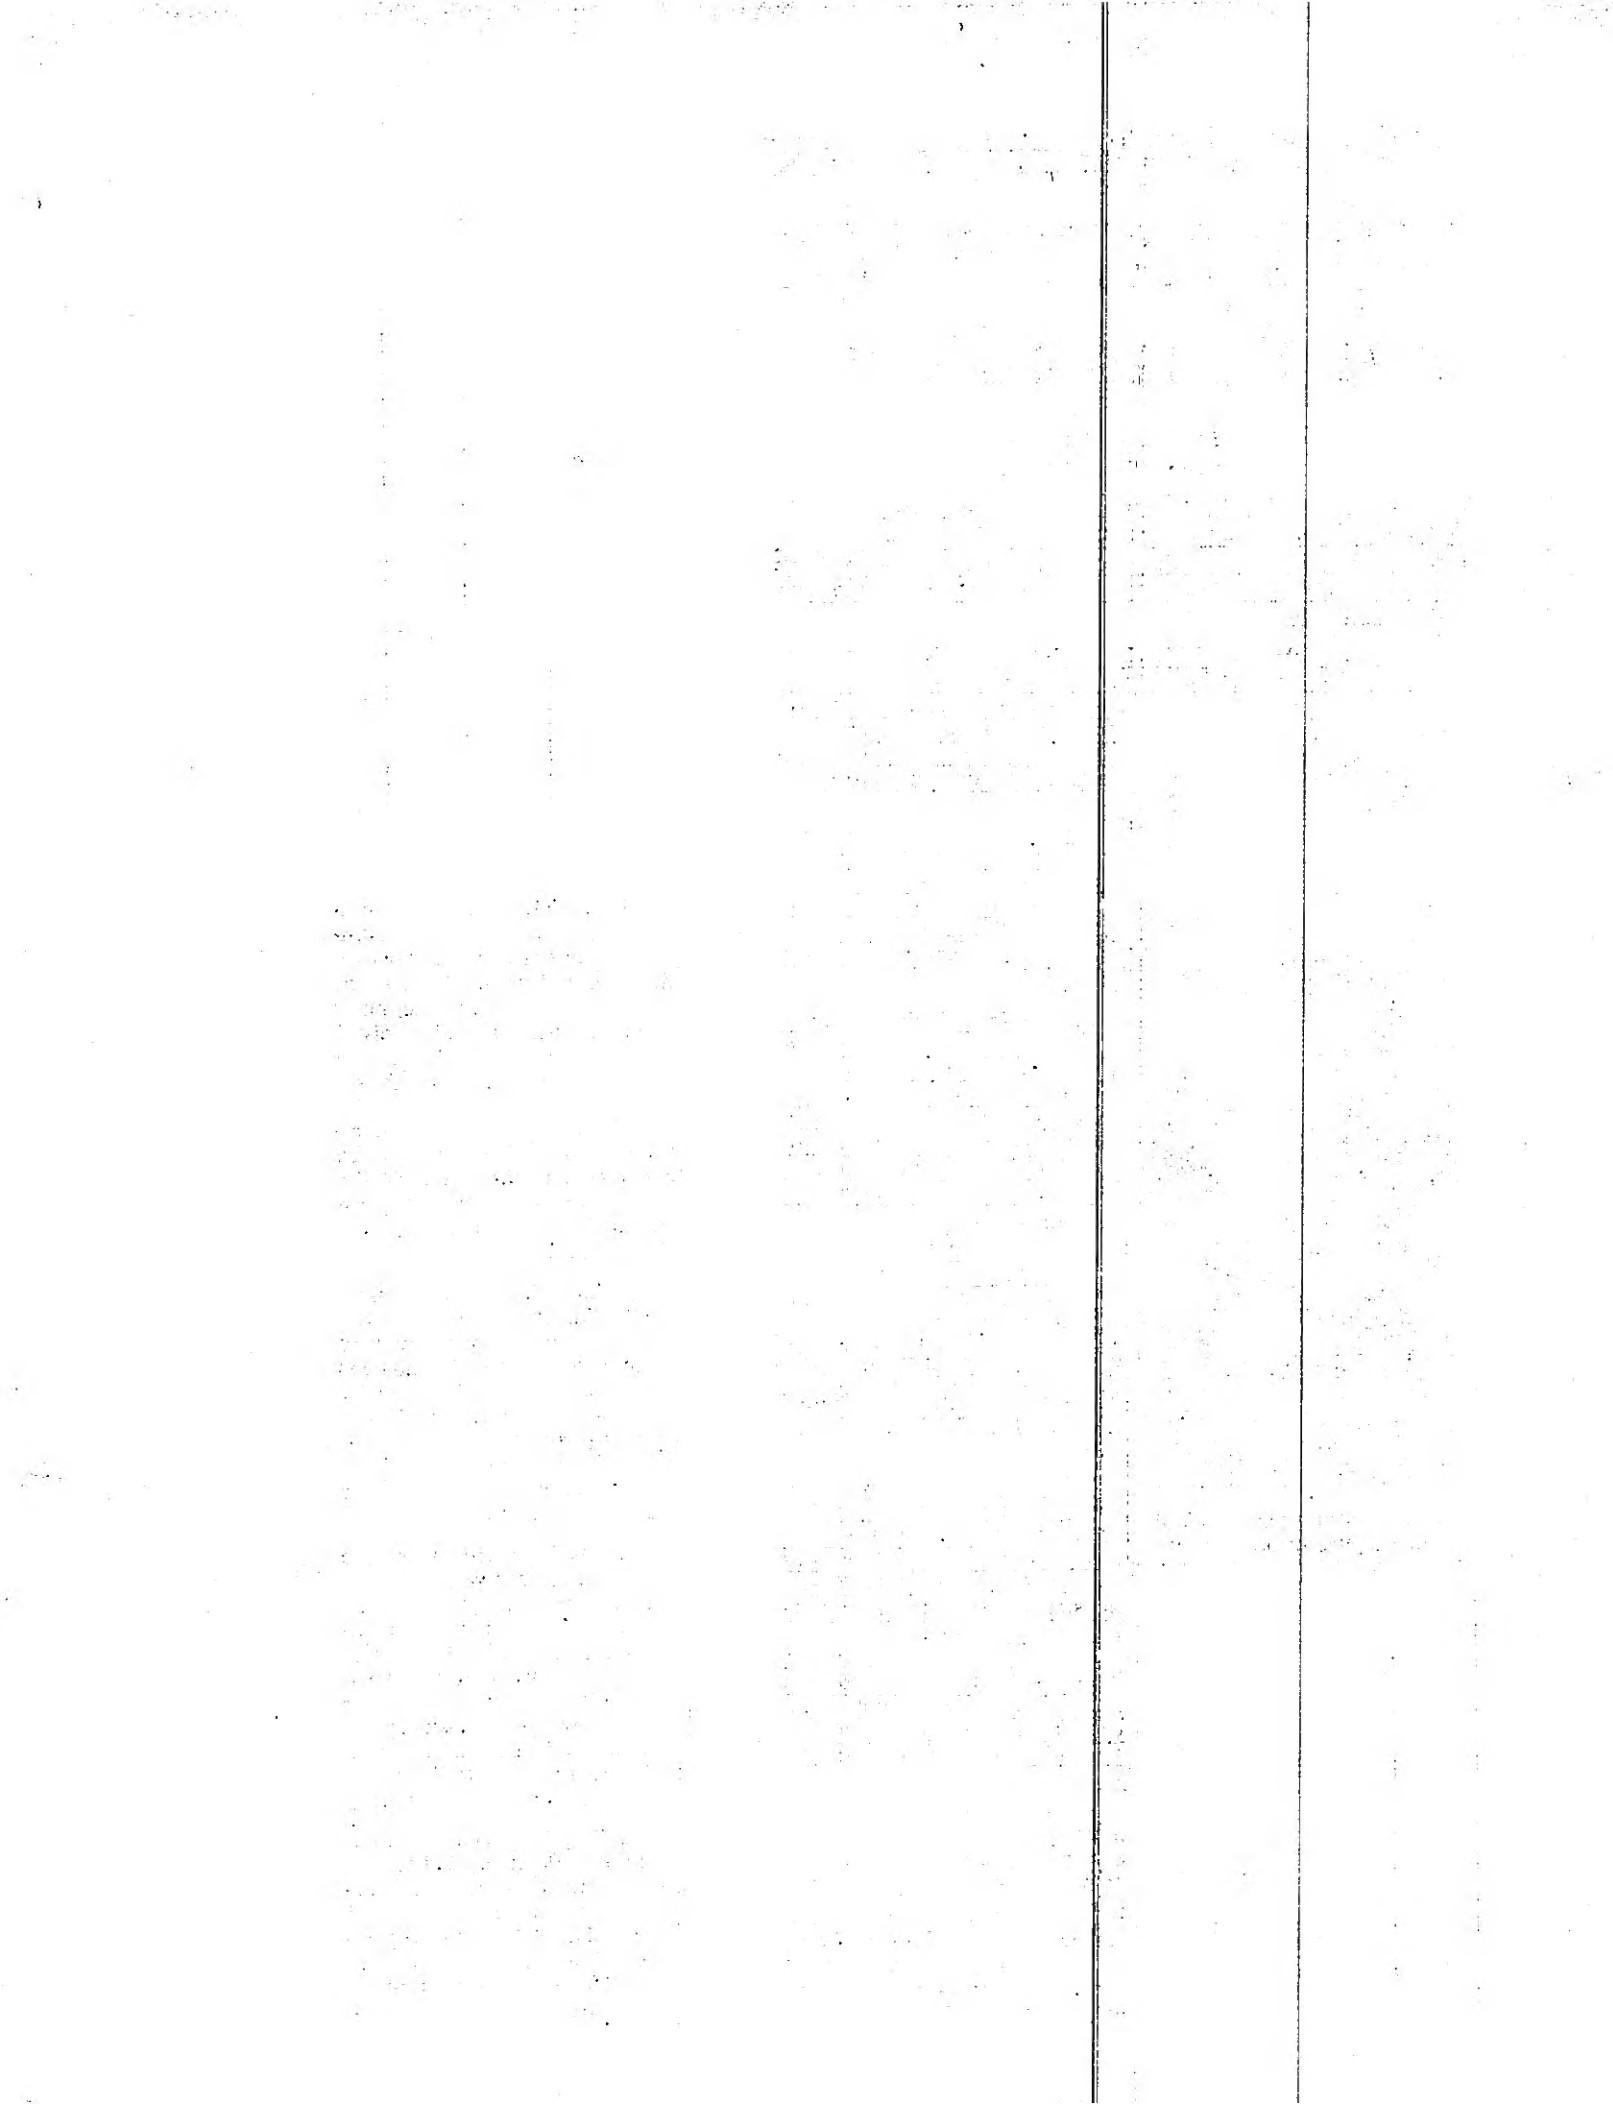

FIRST PHASE of development will, if necessary, be the construction of a primary road system within the boundaries of the park, to be followed by the establishment of picnic and camping facilities.

Mr. Fabian said no definite starting date has been set for the road construction.

THE NEW coordinator also will work closely with the U.S. Forest Service in planning for the over-all development of the park and the adjoining forest lands to the west of the park.

He will be the contact for various interests desiring to establish lodges, winter sports facilities and a possible aerial tramway, said Mr. Fabian.

LAND FOR THE Wasatch Mountain Park is being acquired under a 10-year purchasing arrangement worked out by the 1961 State Legislature. First payment for the initial 18,000 acres was made in November.

Heber Man Selected As Park Coordinator

H. Clay Cummings, Heber rancher, businessman and civic and Church official, Thursday was named project coordinator for the Wasatch Mountain State Park.

Mr. Cummings, currently serving as president of the New Zealand Mission of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, will assume his new position April 1, according to Harold Fabian, Park and Recreation Commission chairman.

Mr. Cummings will be released from his Church position to assume his new duties.

Board 'Delighted'

"We are delighted to have Mr. Cummings join our staff, and are grateful to the First Presidency of the Church for its cooperation in making the appointment possible," Mr. Fabian said.

The First Presidency announced that Reed Kohler will succeed Mr. Cummings as president of the mission. Mr. Kohler is from Midway in Wasatch County (See separate story this page.)

On the appointment of Mr. Cummings as project coordinator, President Henry D. Moyle of the First Presidency of the Church said, "We feel that the selection of Mr. Cummings will be an important contributing factor to the progress of the park. Since he has served the Church in New Zealand for two years now, and since he is needed here, we have decided to release him from his duties as mission president as soon as an effective transition can be made."

Bureau Director

The new project coordinator was called to serve as director of the New Zealand Temple bureau of information at Hamilton. Later he was named president of the mission with headquarters in Auckland.

A former mayor of Heber for four consecutive terms, and a Wasatch County commissioner for four terms, Mr. Cummings also served as president of the Wasatch Stake of the Church for 21 years.

He has been engaged in livestock ranching and farming most of his life.

Prior to his call to New Zealand, Mr. Cummings headed the Heber Valley Citizen's Committee which assisted the Park

City for the Wasatch Mountain State Park

Chairman Fabian said the coordinator would work under Park Commissioner Director Aldin Hayward in carrying out development of the master plan program approved by the commission several months ago.

Mr. Cummings will also work out detailed planning for the many areas outlined only generally in the master plan prepared by Theodore Wirth, nationally recognized park planner, of Billings, Mont.

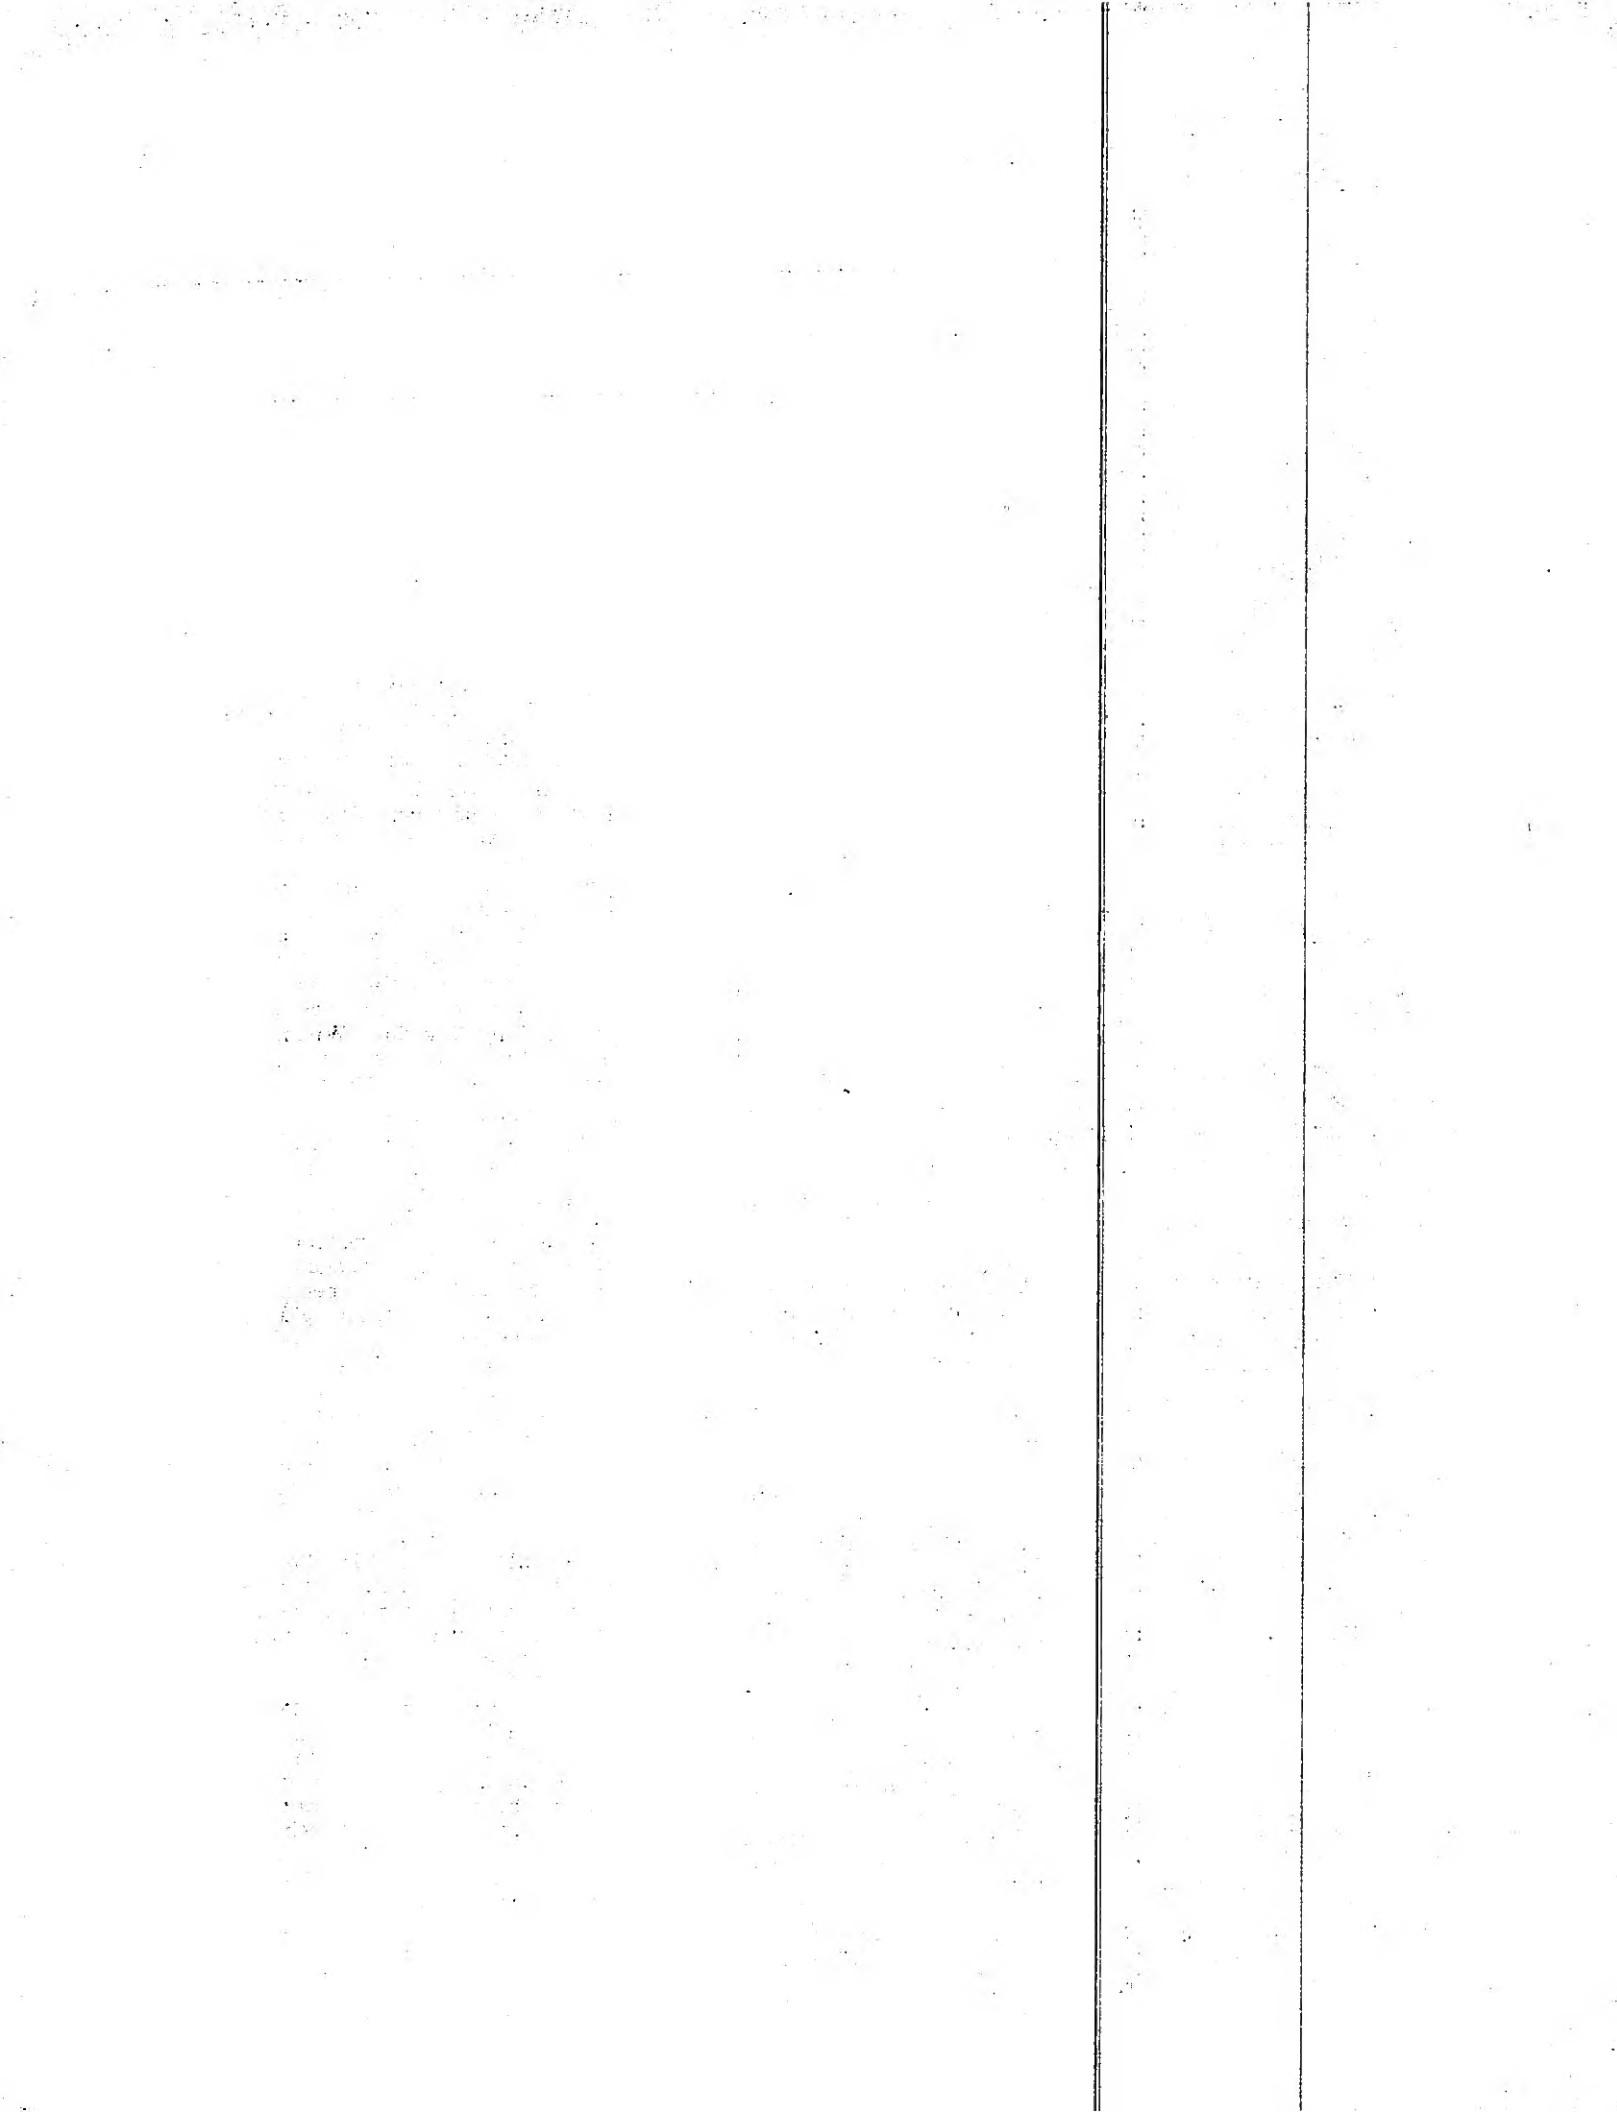

Road System First

First projected development will be the construction of a primary road system within the park proper. This will be followed by establishment of picnic and camping grounds in order that visitors may begin to make use of the park, said Mr. Hayward. Full development will take years, he added.

Mr. Cummings will also work cooperatively in planning with the U.S. Forest Service for overall development of the Wasatch Mountains. Forest Service lands border much of the park on the west side.

He will also supervise the development of lodges, winter sports facilities and a possible aerial tramway to be financed with private money, Mr. Hayward said.

The Wasatch Mountain State Park includes 18,000 acres located on the east slopes of the range extending from Park City on the north to American Fork Canyon and Deer Creek Reservoir on the south. The land is being acquired on a 10-year purchasing arrangement worked out by the 1961 State Legislature. First payment on the land was made in November.

Clay Cummings New President Of L.D.S. New Zealand Mission

President and Mrs. H. Clay Cummings have been selected by the General Authorities of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints to preside over the New Zealand Mission of the Church.

Appointments Made by Church General Authorities

The appointment of two new mission presidents was announced Tuesday by the First Presidency, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

They are Fred W. Schwendiman, Salt Lake printing firm owner who will become president of the New Zealand South Mission, succeeding President Alexander P. Anderson of Salt Lake City, and President H. Clay Cummings, Laie, Oahu, Hawaii, formerly of Heber City, who will preside over the New Zealand Mission, succeeding President Robert L. Simpson of Inglewood, California. Both will be accompanied by their wives.

Special Assignment

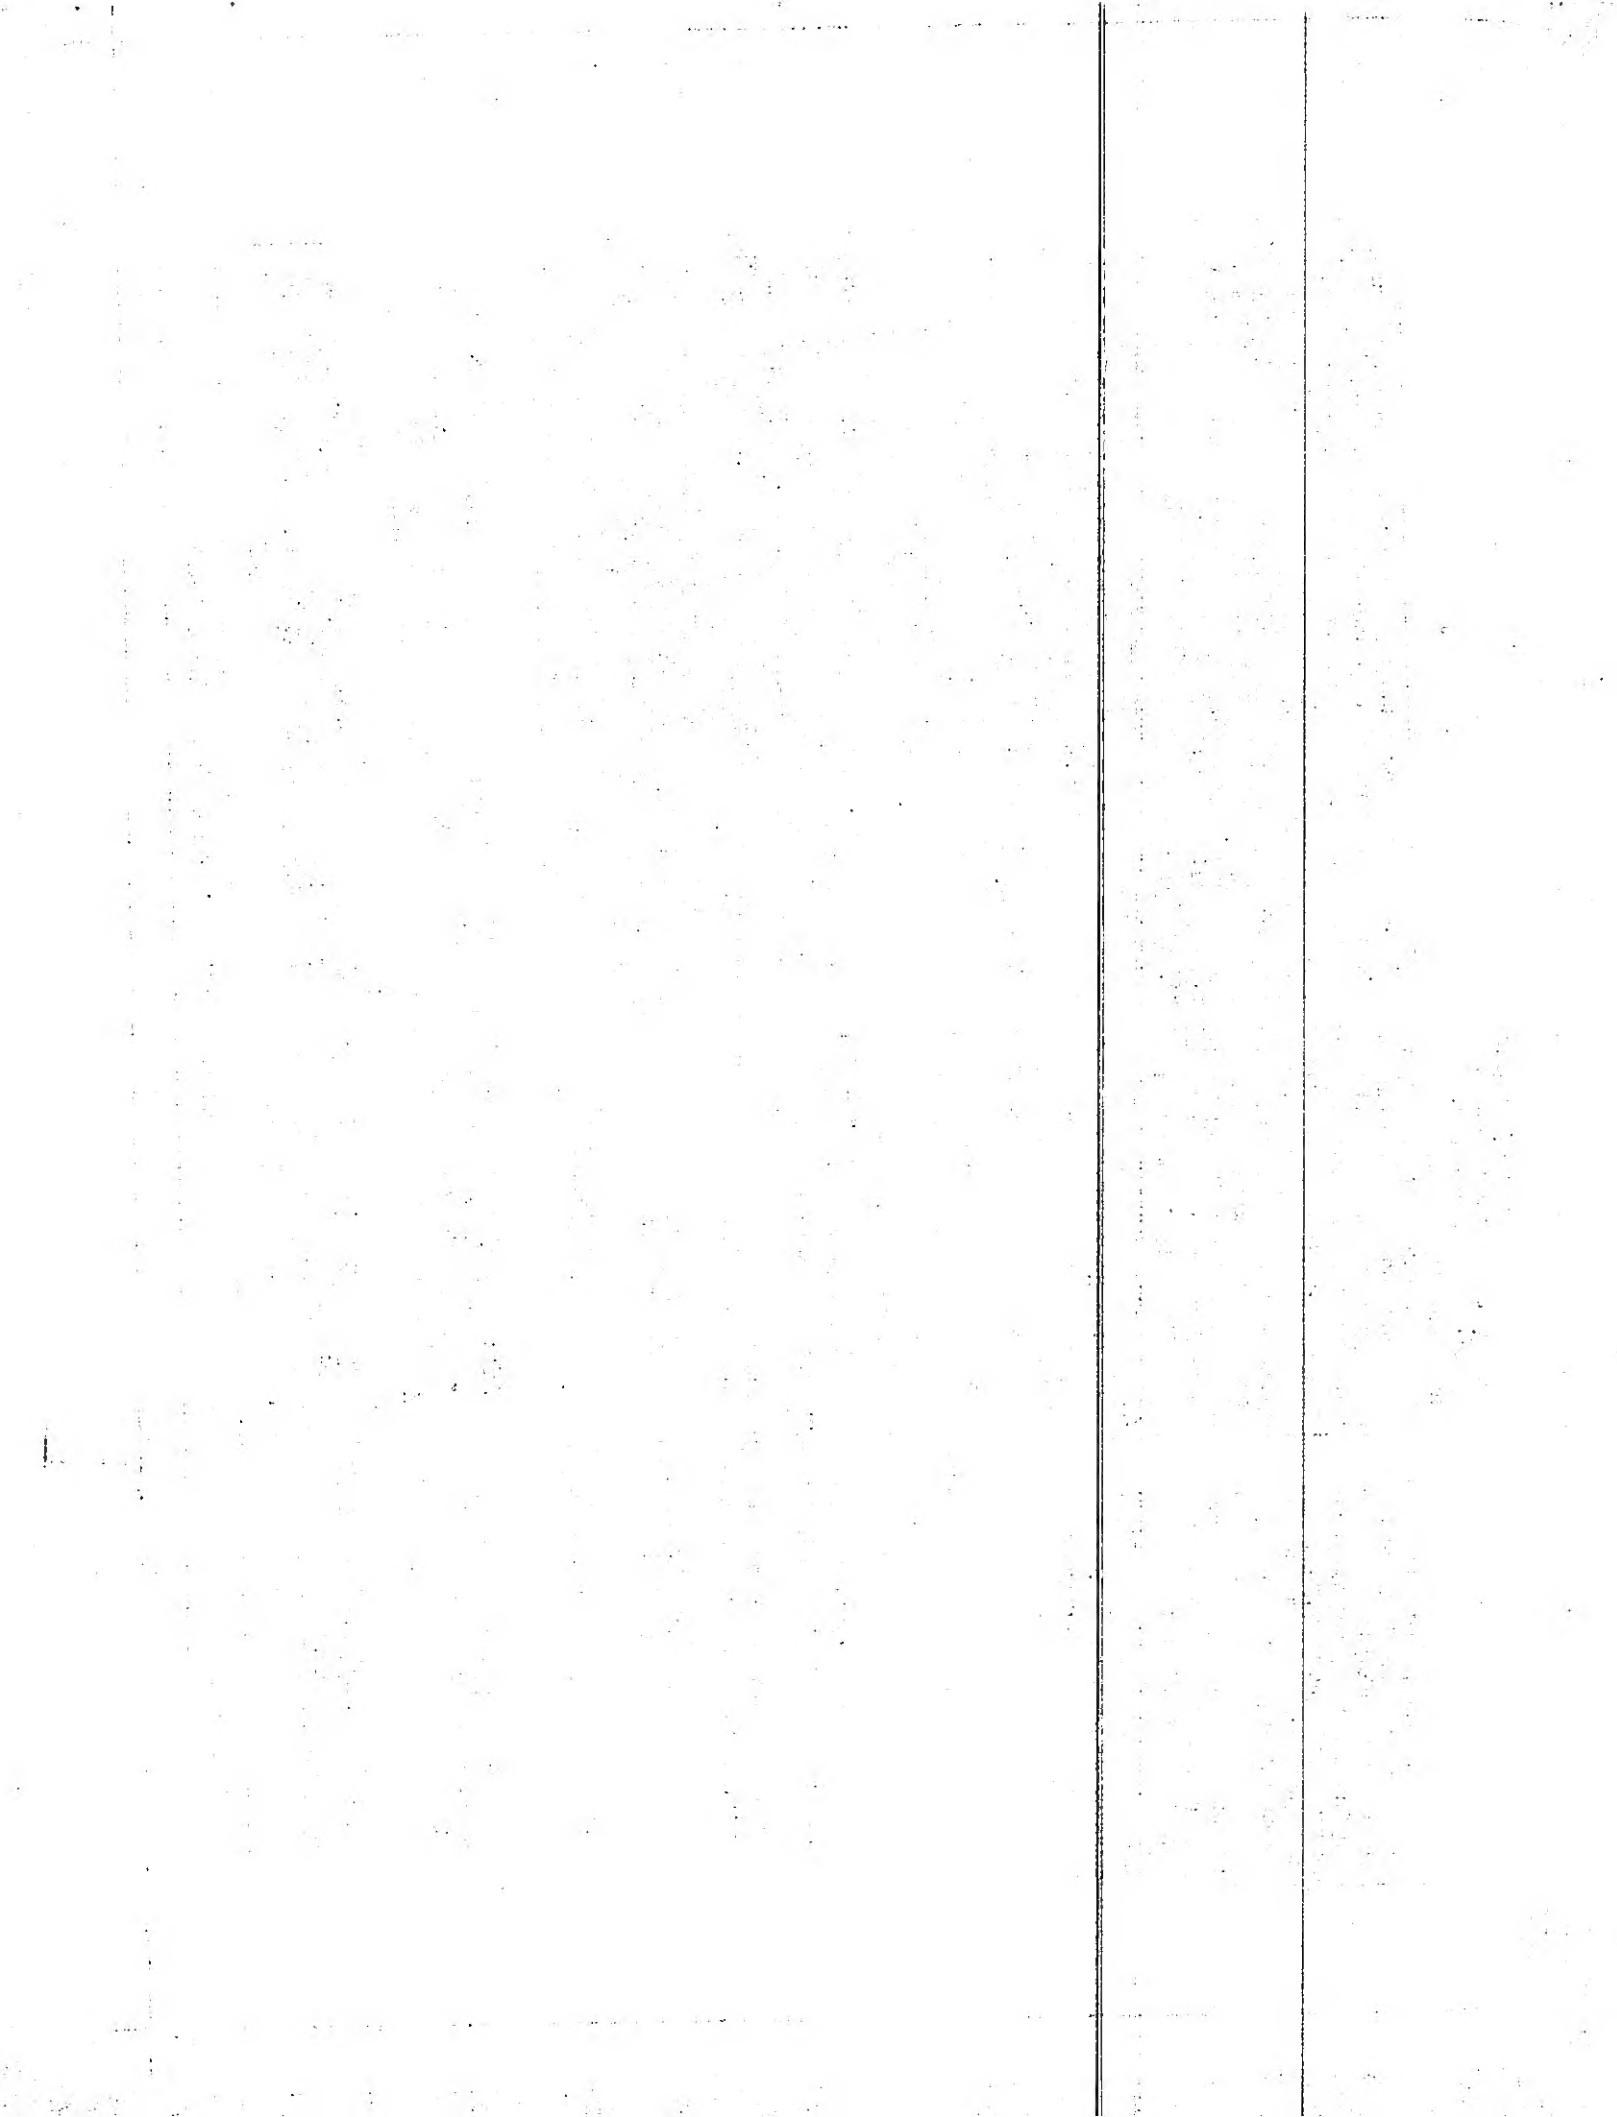

President and Mrs. Cummings have been fulfilling a special assignment from the First Presidency at the Hawaii Temple Bureau of Information since last August. He formerly presided over the Wasatch Stake for 21 years. Previously he served as bishop of the Heber Second Ward following his second (Eastern States) mission. His first mission was in the Northern States.

He was the resident negotiator for the State Parks and Recreation Commission and responsible for getting the options on 21,078 acres of land in less than two years, prior to accepting the temple bureau assignment last summer. The land will embrace the Wasatch Park project.

Livestock Business

President Cummings has been engaged in the livestock business and served four terms as mayor of Heber City, as a county commissioner four years, State Wool Association director, president of the Heber Exchange and director of Oil, Inc.

Mrs. Cummings has also served the auxiliaries of the Church as Ward Relief Society president, on the stake board of the Young Women's Mutual Improvement Association. They have six sons and daughters and 23 grandchildren.

Utah Legislative Council Inspects Wasatch State Park

Favorable Impression Voiced By State Legislators

Wasatch County showed off its proposed state park site Monday for officials of the Utah Parks Commission, members of the Legislative Council and top brass National Guardsmen.

Meeting at Bonanza Flat at 9:00 Monday morning, the group, which also included local civic leaders, went over a relief map of the state park area. Harold Fabian, chairman of the State Parks and Recreation Commission, pointed out the route to be followed on the tour.

The group adjourned briefly for breakfast at the Homestead and then went to Mill Flat where Colonel Herbert Price, commander of the 115th Engineer Company, had 15 National Guard jeeps at the disposal of the tour.

COLONEL PRICE LED A tour of his bivouac in the Mill Flat amphitheatre. An ambush was staged near the head of Snake Creek with bombs and gunfire simulating an effective battle.

On a ridge between Heber Valley and Deer Creek the group stopped while Fabian showed the scope of the park. The tour then turned back to the head of American Fork Canyon where more points of interest were viewed.

A 2 p. m. banquet at The Homestead featured talks by Fabian, who told the story of the park from the beginning; by Guy Coleman, Wasatch County Commissioner; Pres Robinson, editor of the Desert News, who stated that if the park is not carried out it will be a "crime against the state of Utah"; and Harold H. Smith, the president of the Wasatch Chamber of Commerce. Following the banquet the Legislative Council met in a brief session.

Meet Tour

Meeting the tour at Guardsman's Pass were Guy Coleman, Chairman of the County Commission, Harold Smith, Chamber Pres.; El-Roy Van Wagoner, Lions Club Pres.; J. F. Mountford, Heber Valley Jaycees Pres.; Ferrin Whittaker, Midway Boosters Club Pres., and H. Clay Cummings, parks representative in this area. These men were assigned to the different cars of the group and told the council members of the park aims.

A Priceless Investment For Utah

WHAT WOULD the Mountain West be like today if, instead of public-spirited, far-visioned men, the developers of the Yellowstone region in Wyoming had been speculators interested in a fast dollar?

What value would there be to the public today if Zions and Bryce and the Grand Canyon and any number of other such wonders had been surrounded by honky-tonks or by private estates from which the public was barred?

What man today even considers the original dollar cost of protecting and developing those areas, compared to their priceless value today?

These questions are germane to the announcement this week that the Utah Park and Recreation Commission is prepared to acquire immediately the "heart" of the proposed Wasatch Mountain State Park and will ask the Legislature to appropriate funds to acquire the rest.

EVERY INDICATION is that future generations will have as much reason to be thankful for the vision that preserved that magnificent area for the public as the present generation has for those who preserved Yellowstone and Grand Canyon and Bryce and Zion and the rest.

Perhaps this park will be even more valuable. It is on the very edge of a metropolitan complex that will include a million people within another half-century. It offers the brightest hope that those million people will have a place to escape quickly and often from daily pressures, to seek solitude and the spiritual regeneration that can come from nature.

The western slope of the Wasatch, with its beautiful canyons, will always be limited in its recreation potential because of the problem of keeping the valley's drinking water pure. The park nearing reality on the eastern slope will have no such limitation. It can be developed with recreation almost the sole consideration.

What the Park Commissioners have on their planning boards is a 24,000-acre tract of mountain and meadow land stretching from the shores of Deer Creek Reservoir north beyond Guardsman Pass. It is, essentially, the land on the opposite side of the mountain from American Fork and Big and Little Cottonwood Canyons.

THE AREA is unbelievably beautiful. It offers the possibility of countless excellent campsites and picnic grounds connected by roads winding peacefully through inspiring country. It offers slopes for skiing development that, connected by lifts with the Alta-Brighton complex, can surpass anything else in America. Plans are developing for a major resort hotel with golf course and winter and summer sports, with part of the income going to the state.

Present tax income from lands included in the proposed park run $4,020 a year. Grazing permits alone would produce at least $21,311 a year, before development even begins.

Thanks to some hard work by the Park Commission itself under its able chairman, Harold Fabian, and to a dedicated group of Heber Valley leaders under H. Clay Cummings, options have been obtained on practically all the land needed. The Commission is ready now to spend $350,000 for the key piece of property, a 494-acre tract, and will ask nearly $1 million from the Legislature for the rest.

THIS IS AN INVESTMENT in the future

—and in the present, too, for that matter—that Utah simply cannot afford to pass up. Utahns owe their gratitude for the hard work and vision that have made possible the fulfillment of this dream, and will expect the Legislature to be sure the opportunity is not lost.

leadership and you all should be proud it produces that kind of men.

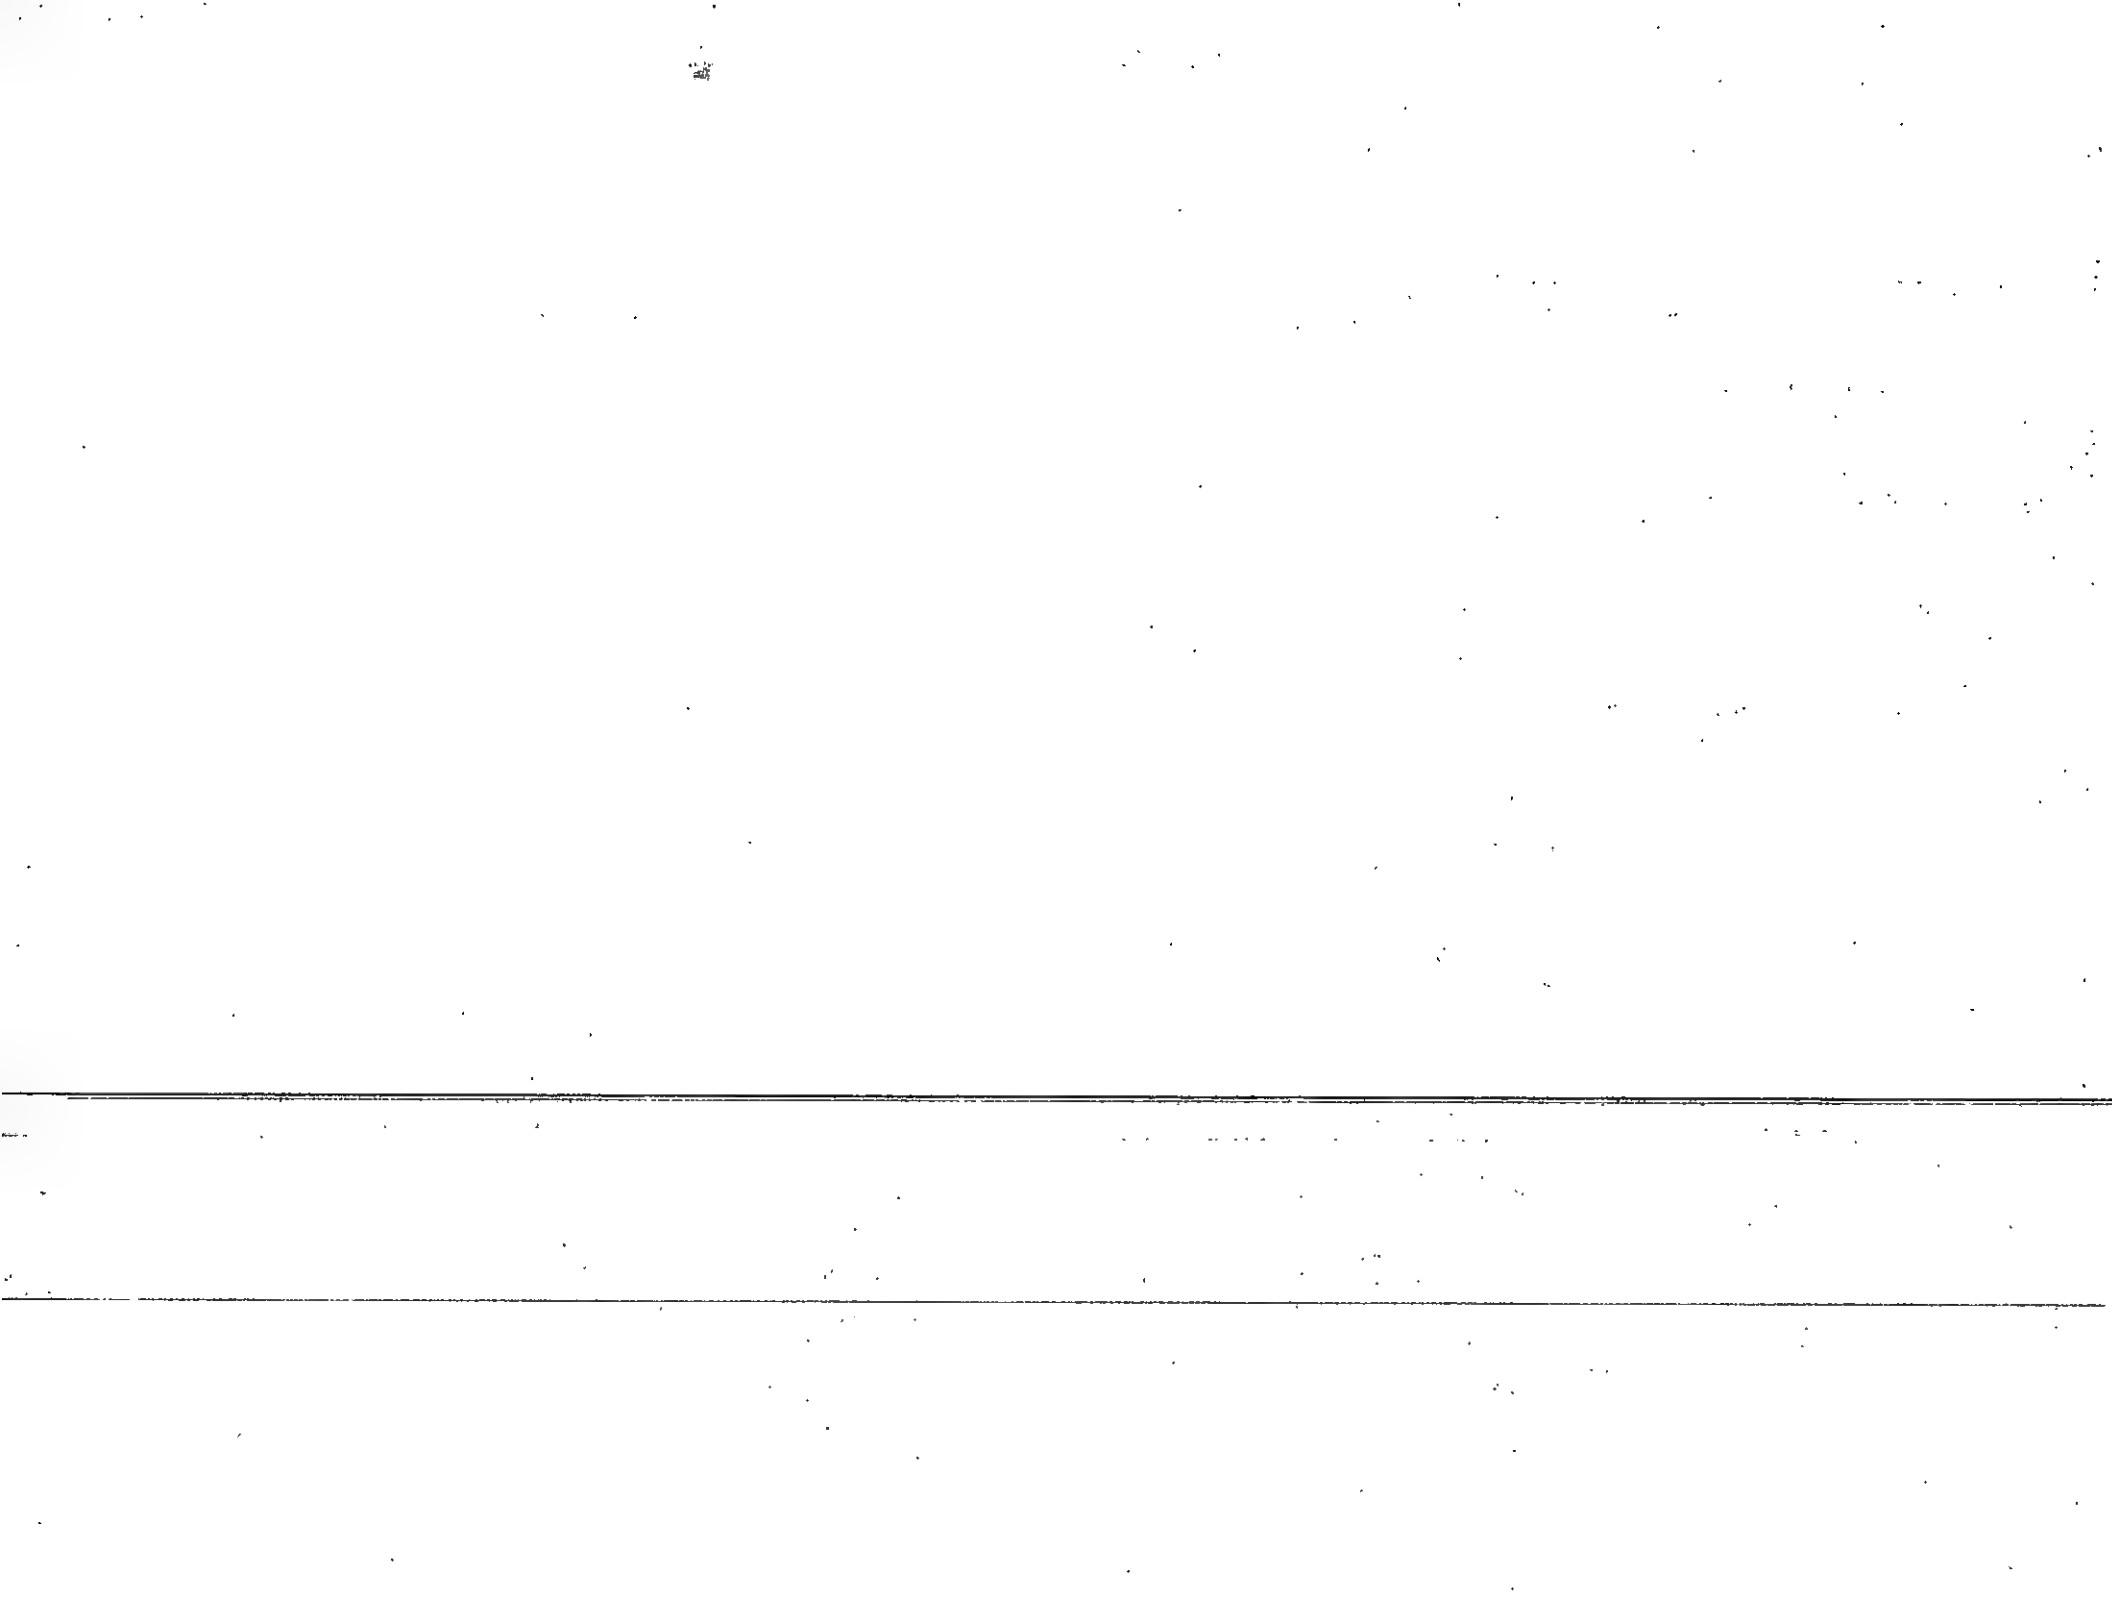

Sometimes you are so close to outstanding people that you don't see them in their true light. I am sure some of the people in your community do not fully appreciate these men I have named, and others that could be named, for the public service they render, and for the concern they have about community problems.

I just wanted to call this matter to the attention of your readers through the columns of your paper.

6 Farmers Sign Park Options

HEBER CITY—Six Midway farmers have signed options with the Utah State Parks and Recreation Commissioners in the latest development of the Wasatch State Park project. H. Clay Cummings, Utah Parks Commission representative, reports that others are expressing willingness to complete negotiations.

"Alma" Huber, Glen Zenger, Randall Schear, Owen Probst, Eddie Epperson and Joe Huber, are the farmers whose signatures the state has obtained to this date. There are numerous small lots to be bought. Much of the property to be acquired, is within the family relationship here. There is now no question but what the state park will become a reality.

Between the different members of the Huber family there is an estimate of around 2,500 acres involved in the state park site.

Hubers' apples have been known all over the valley. The first and last carload of apples that ever left Wasatch County was sent from the Huber place.

Apple Tree Starts

They were bought by the William M. Roylance Co. of Provo, Utah. Abram Hatch, first president of the Wasatch Stake gave Mr. Huber their first start of apple trees. This started the "Huber Grove." Their yellow transparent apples have been known all over the valley. One tree 80 years old is still yielding apples. The Hubers would like to see the state park keep an apple orchard.

Sometimes three months passed before the Hubers could get into town during the long winters.

Nephi and Joe recalled driving four head of oxen up the canyon hitched to a cart around the age of eight. It was very steep coming back. The cart had to be rough locked.

From the Huber Ranch you can look out over the park site and the beautiful Midway Valley. Possibilities for a year-round sports resort are clearly evident.

H. Clay Cummings stated that Midway residents have expressed a desire to see a little Swiss village built up on Mill Creek Flat. The park commission is very much interested in it and hopeful that it will develop into a year-round concession.

"It is also proposed to build an amphitheater that will seat from 10,000 to 15,000 people. Local productions could be presented for a week at a time. Offers have been made from the universities to help produce some plays. This has been inspired by the traditional Swiss program produced and presented in Midway each year," he said.

Many letters have been received from former residents requesting small pieces of ground for summer cabins up Snake Creek. Some of these people still cherish fond memories of this beautiful valley.

H. Clay Cummings Prime Factor in Securing Options

State Ready To Buy First Parcel Of 24,000-Acre Park West Of Heber

By LEE FREMSTAD

United Press International

HEBER (UPI) — You can't make reservations or go camping there just yet, but get ready — Utah has a grand, brand new state park in its future.

It will be the Wasatch Mountain State Park—24,000 acres on the east side of the Wasatch Mountains toward the Heber Valley devoted to skiing, camping, hiking, golf and fishing. It's planners fondly hope to see it overshadow Sun Valley, Jackson Hole, Wyo., and similar spots as one of the finest recreation areas in the nation.

And it's already moving from plans in the filing cabinet to an actuality. Next month the State Park and Recreation Commission will buy the first parcel of land, a 500-acre chunk for $350,000.

Park Boundaries

The park as envisioned will include as its southern boundary about five miles of Deer Creek Reservoir shoreline, sweep west to the boundary of Forest Service land in the Wasatch Mountains, go north as far as Guardsmen's Pass Road and back again to include some farmland just west of Midway.

The remaining 19,000 acres, thanks to the good offices of H. Clay Cummings, the rancher stockman and four-term mayor of Heber who is acting as the commission's agent, is nearly all under option to Dec. 1, 1961.

"We have it about all sewed up, except for a little residential subdivision on upper Snake Creek," says Cummings with satisfaction.

With the acreage in hand, the next step will be to find the money to buy it, a job for the Legislature next spring. Dwight Freeman, chief of administration for the commission, thinks the outlook for that is favorable.

It will take just over $1 million to buy up the rest of the land now under option.

Options Low

"And we'll never get options like those again," Cummings says. "There's such an interest among real estate men now they would gobble them up instantly at higher prices."

Cummings said the state will pay about $850 an acre for farmland and about $30 per acre for mountain land. Prices are currently running $1,000 and $350 per acre for the same kinds of land.

Once the remaining land is purchased—which will be next year if the Legislature shares the dream of commission director Harold Fabian and Henry J. Moyle of the First Presidency of the Latter-day Saints Church, two prime movers for the park—resort building can start.

The commission plans to invite bids from private concessionaires for the boat docks, ski areas, a golf course, hotels and lodges that will make the area desirable for native and tourist alike.

Cummings and his wife, Ruby, have been doing the on-the-missionary work to interest visitors in the park. The Cummins and neighbors Nephi and B. Probst and Francis and Al Probst have taken dozens of level visitors on a tour of area which ends with a dinner in the mountains.

Guests have included G. George D. Clyde, members of Legislative Council, a representative of Hilton Hotels and othe

"They come out of there very enthusiastic," says Cummings.

New York state, which ranks first among the states of Union in population, ranks 3 in area.

Wasatch State Park Becomes Reality as 11 Deeds Obtained

In presenting the checks, Cummings stated: "I have nothing but praise for the fine cooperation on the part of the property owners. I'd like to compliment all who are delivering their deeds tonight and all others who have or will cooperate to make this great project materialize."

Year-round Park

The park will open year-round recreational activity in this area with long-range plans calling for ski-lifts, golf courses, and a network of trails for riders and hikers. According to Cummings, two giant corporations are now investigating the possibilities of a mountain lodge to be built on park land.

Guy Coleman, chairman of the Wasatch County Commissioners, presented a deed for an additional 46 acres to the parks commission as a gift from the county. The land includes the Mill Flat area where the state has pledged to build an amphitheatre.

Preserve Pastoral Setting

Commissioner Coleman expressed hope that the state would preserve the pastoral and peaceful setting by keeping it "close to nature and close to God". He also stated that he hoped the move was "one our children would be proud of."

Also present at the meeting was Midway Town President Earl Kohler, Commissioner William J. Bond and Commissioner, Walter Montgomery; legal adviser Glen Hatch; Harold Smith, president of the Wasatch Chamber of Commerce; and Byron Cheever.

On Tuesday Cummings met with Wilbur Hansen, director of the State Parks and Recreation Commission, for a tour of the project. Hansen contacted Nephi Probst, requesting him to work with Cummings prior to the latter's departure for Hawaii on a special mission for the LDS Church and then take over responsibility as parks representative from this area.

Landowners Receive Checks From Parks Commission

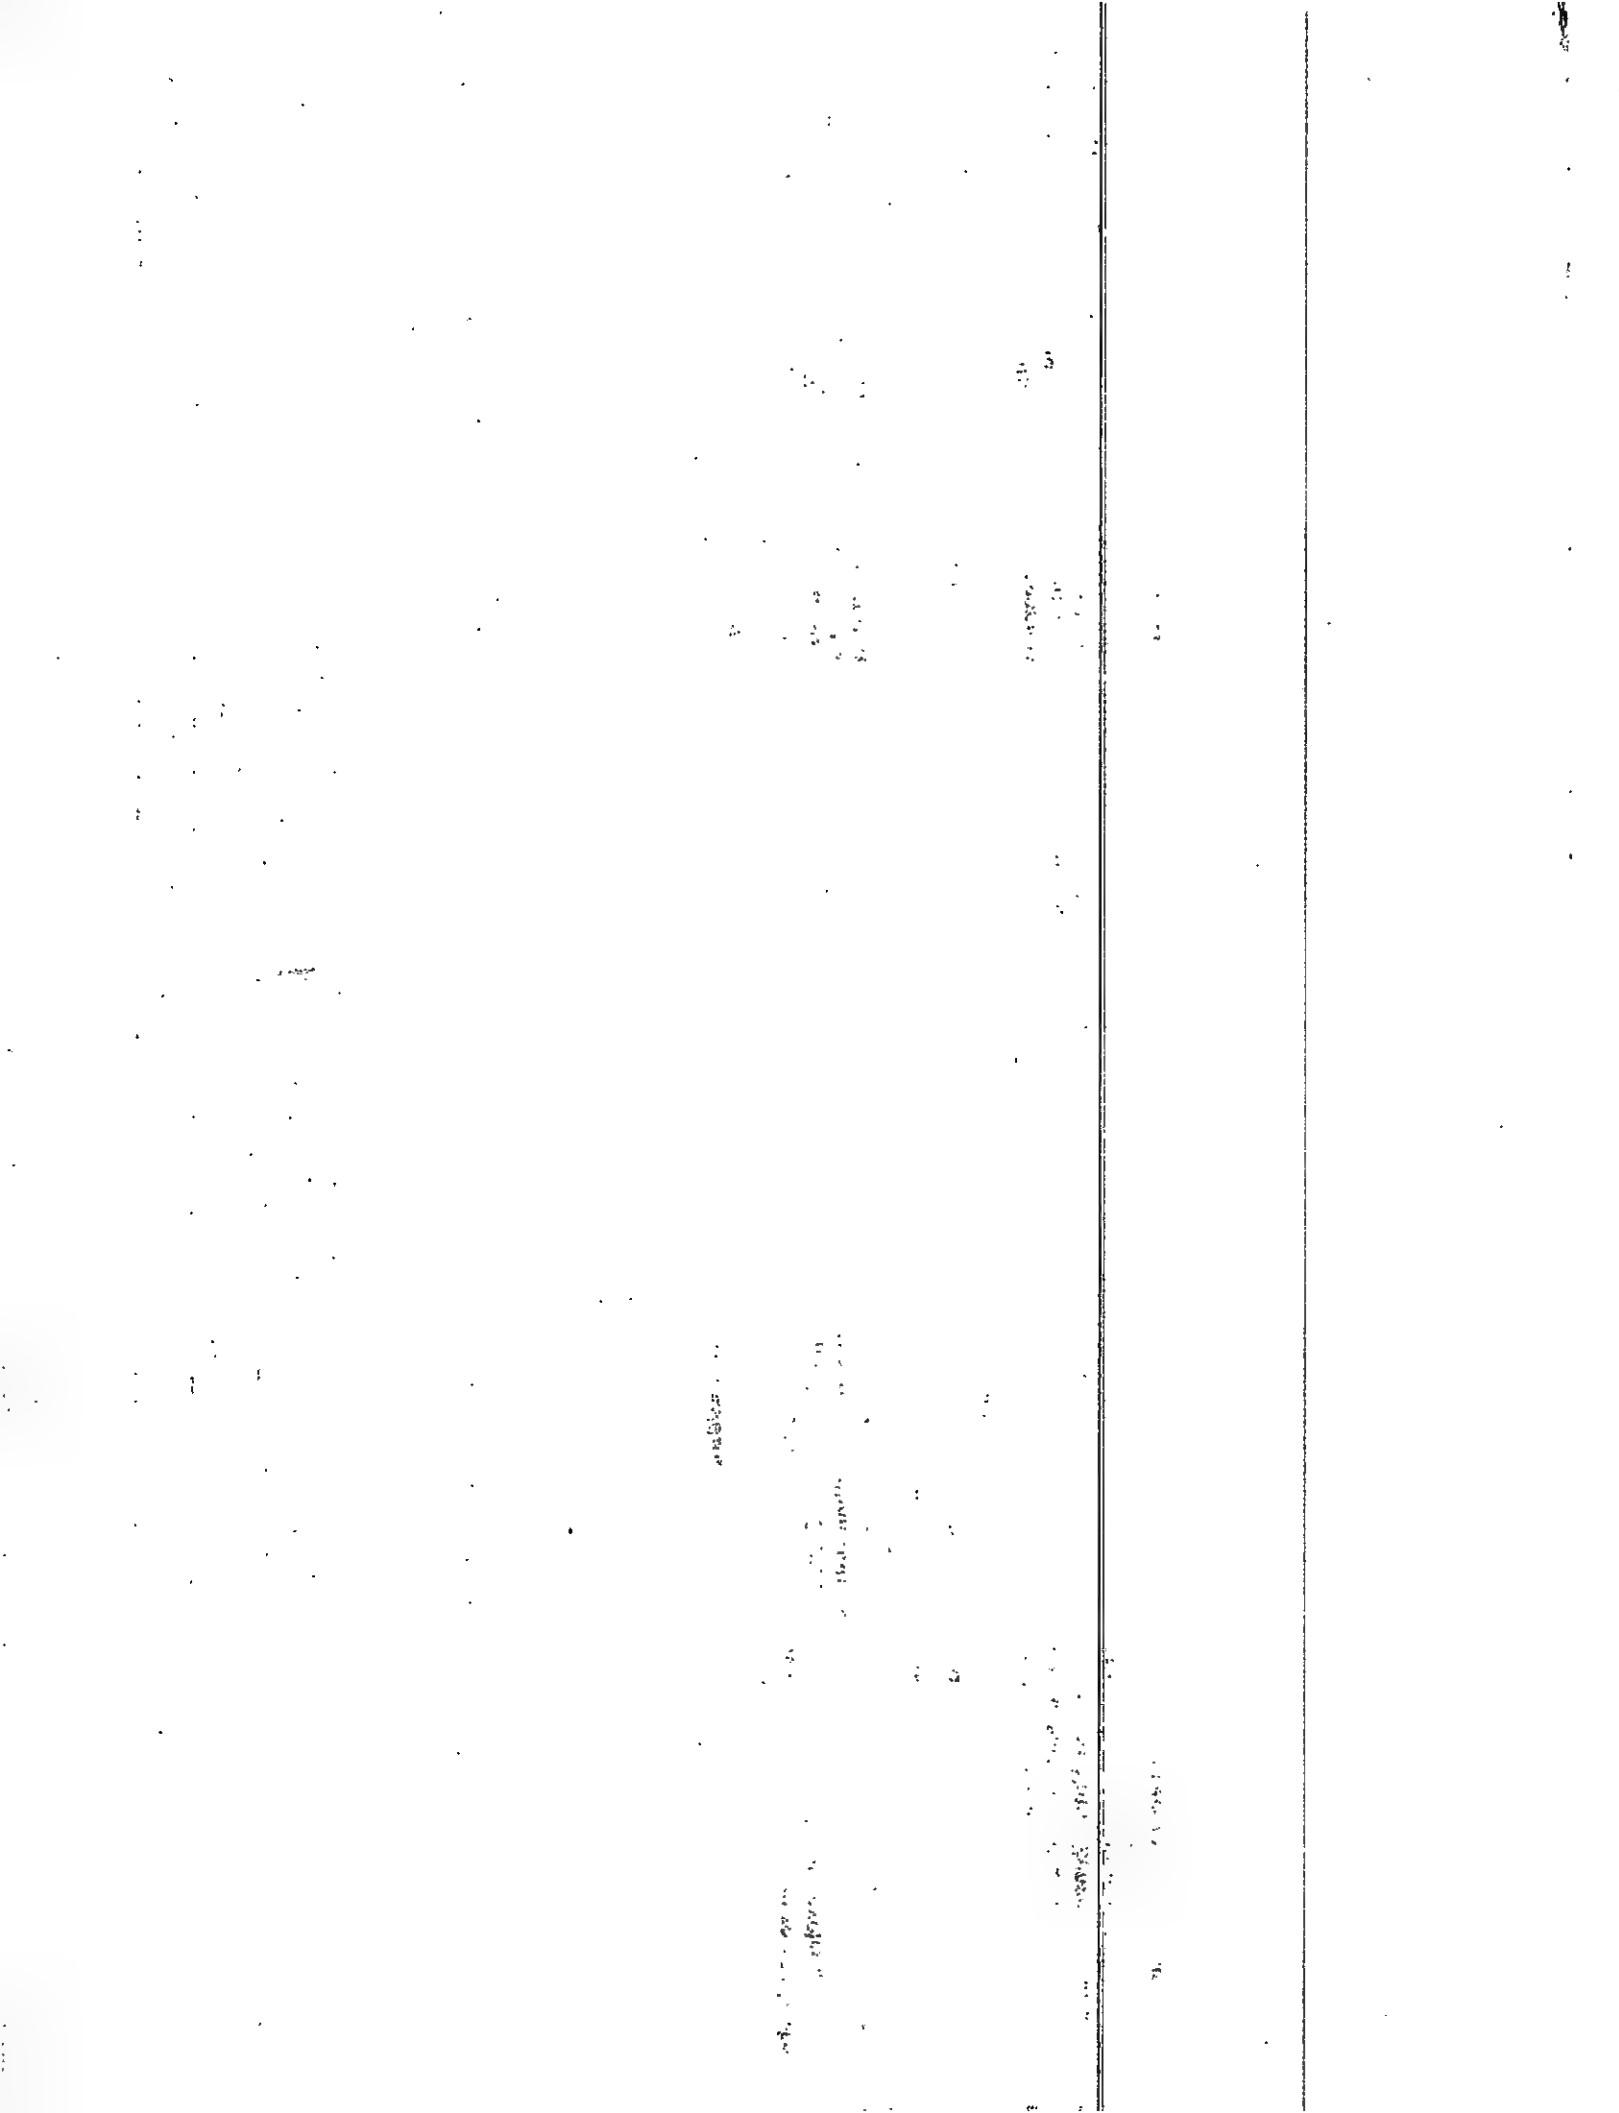

The long-awaited, much disputed Wasatch Mountain State Park was tied up in a neat package late last week and delivered to the Utah Parks and Recreation Commission Saturday night in exchange for over a quarter of million dollars.

$240,1892 worth of checks were distributed to Wasatch County landowners in sealed envelopes at a special meeting called Saturday evening in the Council Room of the Town Hall.

H. Clay Cummings, who acted as liaison between the parks commission and local landowners, presented checks to: Alma Nettie Huber, Randall and Schear, Genev Chapman, Broadbent, Nephi and Ann Huber, Glen and Emily Zenger, Owen and Rose Probst, Vernon and Melba Probst, Joe Huber, Eddie and Marie Epperson, Joe Dean and Peggy Huber.

All Farm Land

The 400 acres involved, all farm land, gives the parks commission an impressive nucleus, with 21,000 acres still under portion from the shore line of Deer Creek and the mountains west including Deer Creek Canyon to the forest line, extending to the county line between Summit and Wasatch Co. The park will also include all of Deer Creek, Pine Creek, Snake Creek Canyons and into Dutch Canyon.

Utah Park System Readies Addition

By Jerome K. Full
Tribune Staff Writer

Utah's state park system soon will have a new addition: the Wasatch Mountain State Park.

THE STATE PARK AND RECREATION COMMISSION announced to the Utah Legislative Council Monday that it is ready to buy the heart of the park area "immediately."

The Council was asked to urge the 1961 Legislature to provide enough additional money to buy the remainder.

HAROLD P. FABIAN, commission chairman, said the final instruments are being drawn up for purchase of a 494-acre tract at the mouth of Snake Creek, Wasatch County.

The commission, he said, has $350,000 for that purpose.

UNDER OPTIONS extending to Dec. 31, 1961, are all but 300 acres of the proposed 24,000-acre state park—and those 300 acres are expected to be optioned soon.

Mr. Fabian said the commission will require between $900,000 and one million dollars from the Legislature convening next January to buy the land. The budget request will have top priority, he said.

THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL made no commitment. But privately, council members said they were convinced by the appeal from the state and local officials.

The presentation to the council marked the achievement by local groups of doing that which the state had previously failed to do.

THE COMMISSION had tried unsuccessfully to get options on the proposed park land. Then local groups took over. A State Park Committee was organized by the Wasatch County Commission to get landowners to agree to a package sale. H. Clay Cummings, Heber, project manager for the commission, lead the campaign.

The package wrapped up for the state consists of 24,067 acres, at prices ranging from $30 an acre for mountain land to $650 an acre for farm land.

MR. FABIAN said the park will surpass Aspen and Sun Valley as a national recreational mecca. It will join Forest Service lands near the Wasatch Mountain crest above Alta and Brighton and will tie to those areas in a mammoth recreational complex, he said.

The commission, he said, has $350,000 for that purpose.

UNDER OPTIONS extending to Dec. 31, 1961, are all but 300 acres of the proposed 24,000-acre state park—and those 300 acres are expected to be optioned soon.

Mr. Fabian said the commission will require between $900,000 and one million dollars from the Legislature convening next January to buy the land. The budget request will have top priority, he said.

THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL made no commitment. But privately, council members said they were convinced by the appeal from the state and local officials.

The presentation to the council marked the achievement by local groups of doing that which the state had previously failed to do.

THE COMMISSION had tried unsuccessfully to get options on the proposed park land. Then local groups took over. A State Park Committee was organized by the Wasatch County Commission to get landowners to agree to a package sale. H. Clay Cummings, Heber, project manager for the commission, lead the campaign.

The package wrapped up for the state consists of 24,067 acres, at prices ranging from $30 an acre for mountain land to $650 an acre for farm land.

MR. FABIAN said the park will surpass Aspen and Sun Valley as a national recreational mecca. It will join Forest Service lands near the Wasatch Mountain crest above Alta and Brighton and will tie to those areas in a mammoth recreational complex, he said.
